Re: Notice of Breach of Security
            Pursuant to RSA 359-C:20

Dear Sirs/Mesdames:

Pursuant to RSA 359-C:20, Genworth Financial Trust Company ("GFTC"), a chartered trust company in Arizona, is writing to provide notice of a breach of security involving New Hampshire residents.

GFTC first received notice of this breach on February 4, 2008 following receipt of one e-mail message from a client. The client reported that they had received their 1099-R tax statement with their account number and Recipient Identification number (Social Security number) visible through the window of a sealed envelope. GFTC learned that its print supplier did not detect conditions that may have caused some portion of its clients' personal information to be visible through the window envelope if the contents of the envelope shifted all the way to the left during mail processing.

Because there can be no assurance that access to personal information was made, GFTC decided to take a cautious approach and notify all clients of the potential issue, including offering support to those wishing to take advantage of credit monitoring services. These notifications were mailed to clients on March 12.

Thank you for your consideration of this matter. Please do not hesitate to call me direct with any questions that you might have at (818) 528-3707.

Very truly yours,

Philip McKinley
Chief Compliance Officer

Dear [CLIENT]:

At Genworth Financial Trust Company, we value our relationship with you as the custodian of your assets managed by our affiliate, Genworth Financial Asset Management, Inc. As one of our services, we offer comprehensive tax reporting, including forms necessary for you to file your taxes each year, such as Form 1099-R.

We recently learned that one of our trusted print suppliers did not detect conditions that may have caused some portion of your personal information to be visible through the sealed envelope window of your 1099-R mailing. While we only had one client report concern regarding the mailing, we decided to take a cautious and open approach to notifying clients of the potential issue, including offering support to those wishing to take advantage of some of the latest credit monitoring services available.

Here is a brief description of the issue. Your account number and social security number (referred to on the 1099-R as the Recipient's Identification number) could have been visible through the window of a sealed envelope if the contents of the envelope shifted to the far left during mail processing. While we have no reason to believe that your information may be misused, we are offering you a free one-year subscription to a credit monitoring service provided by Equifax Personal Solutions. By subscribing to Equifax Credit Watch™ Gold with 3-in-1 Monitoring Credit Watch, you will have an "early warning system" to detect changes in your credit file and to help you understand the content of your credit file at the three credit reporting agencies.

To sign up for this service at no cost to you, follow the instructions on the following pages, which include the Promotion Code that has been assigned specifically to you to enroll. You will also be able to read about the benefits provided by Equifax Credit Watch™ Gold with 3-in-1 Monitoring Credit Watch.

Please be aware that if you want this service, we cannot enroll for you. We also suggest that you take the other steps outlined on the following pages to reduce any potential risk to you.

We have worked with our print supplier to eliminate this issue for future mailings of these documents. We sincerely apologize for any inconvenience or concern this may have caused you. Please know that Genworth Financial Trust Company takes the security of your personal information very seriously.

Sincerely,

Bradford Wheeler
President
